

Cheshire West and Chester Social Services in England

have covered up domestic violence, domestic abuse, sexual assaults and carried out a smear campaign against the children involved and the parent who suffered domestic violence.

Below is an example of a document they doctored blatantly to smear the father.

The child wrote -

1. I am cross because I don't get to see my Daddy.
2. I am sad when somebody hits me.
3. I am worried because I am late for school.

Social workers wrote in pen 'my daddy hits me' and reported to the courts that the child had written 'I am sad when my daddy hits me'. They didn't produce the actual document below in court. When challenged on it numerous times, they then produced it in court and said a school teacher had written on it. The child told them daddy did not hit him and that he never wrote that daddy hit him.

Social services wrote a Chronology to the court stating that no sexualised assault had ever happened to the female child involved. Police records give detailed reporting of the sexual assault on the child. One of the social workers was secretly taped saying she didn't believe anything the children told her. She chose to believe the mother who the social worker was very 'palsy' with - the same mother who had carried out domestic violence and abuse of the children.
